

FAILURE MARKS CONFERENCE TO END RAIL STRIKE

RAIL STRIKE ENTERS
EIGHT WEEK TO BOMB
ACCOMPANIMENTS

New Outrages Increased
Black Marks of Big Railroad Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—The railroad strike approached the end of its eighth week today to the accompaniment of bombs.

While rail heads and union leaders at their conferences in New York were wrestling with proposals for bringing the strike to a whole or partial settlement, new outrages increased the black marks of the strike.

Bombings followed a night of rail greasing and the cutting of air hose at Rockhouse, Ill., division point on the Chicago & Alton. Two explosions occurred near the C. & A. roundhouse and another bomb burst near a hotel where railroad workers were quartered. The bombing occurred as the town was thrown into darkness when all lights went out.

Many Shots Fired

Passengers on one of the Alton's fast trains which pulled out of Rockhouse during the disturbances, said many shots were fired.

An Illinois Central suburban train running between New Orleans and the company's shops at Harahan was stoned by a crowd which dispersed before police arrived. A passenger on the train was injured when he was struck on the head by a rock hurled through a coach window.

Officials of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and county authorities were investigating an attempt to dynamite a railroad bridge near Spanish Lake, Mo., seventeen miles from St. Louis. Although the explosion was said to have been terrific, little damage was reported.

Bomb Forman's House

Earlier disorders at Jacksonville, Fla., were followed by the dynamiting of the home of J. A. Williams, foreman in the Seaboard Air Line shops and a member of the city council. The front of the house was damaged, but Williams and his wife were in the rear of the building and escaped injury.

Proposals were made to United States Marshal McDonald by striking shopmen at Shawnee, Okla., to replace federal and company guards at railroad shops with strikers. Union leaders said if they were permitted to take over the situation they would afford protection to all workers which the railroads might import. Marshal McDonald replied that the proposal was impracticable. Chairmen of the striking shop crafts said they feared further trouble at Shawnee under existing conditions.

Asks Federal Aid

Following reports from a national guard officer, Governor McCray of Indiana asked federal authorities to intercede in strike disorders at Garrett, Ind., where workmen were threatened, their homes painted yellow and where bombs were discovered.

Charges of murder were made against a negro commissary worker for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe at San Bernardino, Calif., where a striking electrician was shot and killed. The Santa Fe offered rewards for persons who have been guilty of recent bomb outrages.

With the question of seniority the chief barrier to peace, officials of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad declared they would not yield in their stand against restoring seniority to returning strikers. W. M. Whitten, assistant chief operating officer of the road, said the M. K. & T. would re-employ men now on strike if they had not been guilty of violence, but they must return as new employees.

No Rights Promised

At the same time the Santa Fe announced at Topeka, Kan., that conditions had so improved it would be impossible to take back all strikers. The announcement said the road would take back only such strikers as there might be places for, and that they must return as new employees.

Quiet was restored in the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific yards at Herkinton, Ia., following the shooting of a fireman by a railroad guard and a general suspension of work.

State troops remained at duty, but railroad guards were taking no part in patrolling the yards. Although operations were badly crippled, passenger trains were kept running. Workmen agreed not to object to the presence of soldiers if company guards were withdrawn.

The cause of a wreck on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy near Chariton, Ia., had not been determined.

Funeral of Henry Cast on Saturday

The funeral of Henry Cast will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his home. The interment will be in Greenwood. Rev. G. H. Putnam will be in charge of the services.

THIRTY MEN SENT TO NELSON SHOPS
FOR REPAIR WORK

NorthWestern is Getting Ready to Haul Its Coal Trains.

STATE INVESTIGATION OF HERRIN MASSACRE IS READY FOR START

Special Assistant to U. S. Atty. Gen. Will Aid Brundage.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—C. W. Middlekauf, special assistant Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty has been selected to take charge of the special grand jury which will convene next Monday at Marion, Ill., to investigate the Herrin massacre of non-union miners last June, and will leave tomorrow for Marion, it was announced today. The services of Mr. Middlekauf were especially requested of the United States Attorney General by Attorney General Edward J. Brundage of Illinois, and the latter will accompany Mr. Middlekauf to Williamson county tomorrow.

The preparations for a special grand jury investigation of the mine massacre at W. J. Lester strip mine, near Herrin, where on June 21 and 22 more than a score of workmen were shot dead, hanged beaten or fatally wounded by mob selected to have included nearly 2000 union miners and sympathizers, have been under way for weeks. Attorney General Brundage has sought, virtually from the day of the rioting, to bring to justice the rioters. Handicapped by a lack of appropriations, the Attorney General has nevertheless been able, in connection with the aid of officials in Williamson county, to accumulate much evidence.

About thirty workers were delivered to the shops in Nelson on Wednesday, being sent there following the settlement of the coal strike to keep the large number of coal cars that pass through the yards there in condition and to inspect the motive equipment and make necessary repairs.

The passenger train on the Northwestern arriving in Sterling about 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night also carried a large number of workers who were laid over in this city over night and conveyed on the Peoria branch to Pekin, where they will be put to work as car repairers.

It is understood that the Northwestern feels confident that the road will be able to handle the normal coal traffic without difficulty regardless of handicaps in the operation of trains.

Mr. Middlekauf said today that he has before him a mass of information in connection with the Herrin affair which he has only begun to review. The scope, or length of time that may be required by the grand jury inquiry as yet is undetermined, Mr. Middlekauf said, and until he and Mr. Brundage get on the ground little can be said except that every effort will be made to get justice.

MINT DIRECTOR OR DUKE? AYE THAT'S THE RUB

Management of Swell Hotel is Facing Big Problem.

Roundhouse Wrecked By Explosion Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire

San Francisco, Calif., August 25.—The management of an exclusive hotel here must decide by some time tomorrow whether a duke and his duchess and their entourage take precedence over the director of the United States mint.

The hotel has a Presidential suite with a private elevator, three bed rooms, a dining room and a kitchen, to say nothing of a salon and servants' quarters. Just now F. E. Scobey, director of the mint, and formerly a business man of San Antonio, Texas, and close personal friend of President Harding, is in the suite. He plans remaining in the suite for some time.

United States deputy marshals are patrolling the railroad yards following the explosion, which they believe was intended to wreck the Illinois Hotel, headquarters of the non-union Chicago & Alton shop workers.

Shaking foundations of all the houses in the town, and deluging it in darkness, the explosion occurred about 3:30 a. m., shortly after the Chicago & Alton "Hummer" had left. A second explosion at the round house followed. Great confusion ensued. Huddled together, fearing a repetition of the blasts.

Striking union men, residents of Rockhouse firmly and repeatedly denied that they had anything to do with the placing of explosives. Notwithstanding their attitude, numbers of non-union shop workers were this morning reported to have left town.

At 9:30 o'clock the United States Marshals force had obtained no definite clue.

Fear of further explosions took hold not only of the non-union workers, but the members of local train crews. Two crews were reported as having refused to work. Besides the explosion, they had in mind greased rails, which have been encountered here twice since yesterday, once at Hillview, west of here and at Berden Hill, south.

Neither explosion caused immediate damage, to property or life. The damage to the electric plant, put out of commission by the blast, was slight.

Striking union men, residents of Rockhouse firmly and repeatedly denied that they had anything to do with the placing of explosives. Notwithstanding their attitude, numbers of non-union shop workers were this morning reported to have left town.

Further investigations into the workings of the House of Representatives was made yesterday when Assistant State's Attorney William F. McLaughlin questioned Harry J. Strott, secretary and treasurer of the organization. Miss Corda Clement, a teacher; Miss Marie Stuart, who operates a beauty parlor; and Frieda Frohne, husband of Mrs. Frieda Frohne, a patient of the "Doctor."

Mr. McLaughlin said he will call in others today for questioning. He refused to say whether the matter would go before the grand jury, but declared that if such action is necessary it will not come up until the September grand jury convenes.

Dixon Elks Again Lost to Sterling

Dixon Elks' base ball team again fell before the prowess of the Sterling lodge team in the game played at the Community Athletic Park in that city Thursday afternoon, the Sterling boys capturing the game by a 14 to 10 margin.

However the playing of the Dixon team showed marked improvement over the first game between the two teams and the locals hope for another chance at their victorious brothers.

Andrew Aschenbrenner of Lee Counter was a visitor in Dixon today.

Pitchers Were Strong.

Shang was left a third in the Yanks half of the second. Both Hoyt and Shocker were going strong in the third, with no scoring. Hoyt retired the Browns in order in the fourth and Pipp was left at second in the Yanks' half of the fourth. Hoyt and Shocker continued to go strongly in the fifth, both sides going out in order. St. Louis got to Hoyt in the sixth and put over two runs. Foster and Sisler led off with singles; Williams drove a long fly to Witt. A pass to Jacobson filled the bases; McManus singled, scoring Foster and Sisler.

Shocker again turned back the Yanks in their turn of the sixth. Ruth fanned for the second time.

The table was attractively decorated in cosmos and asters and pink lilies and ferns.

After the tempting supper the guests and the guest of honor were seated in a circle and soon Stanwood Trier and Mary Hursch appeared with a small white wagon, Mary driving Stanwood with broad white reins reaching from his arms to the wagon. The wheels of the wagon were wrapped in white and the wagon was heaped with gifts from those present, a miscellaneous shower of beautiful gifts for Miss Coppins.

The choir as a whole presented Miss Coppins with a beautiful cut glass mayonnaise dish, which she values highly as does all the other presents. Much credit for the success of the entire affair belongs to Mrs. Avery Manges, president of the choir, who so ably planned it.

Ship Trombonists Hold Keen Contest for Championship of North Atlantic

Contest for Trombone Championship

New York

An endurance test for the trombone playing championship of the North Atlantic has just concluded and the title has passed to the challenger despite claims of foul made by the loser. The umpire of the unique event will have difficulty with his hearing for some time to come. He is being congratulated, however, on retaining his reason, although he admits that the ordeal was one that had him on the verge of a brain-storm.

Harry Brown, trombone player in the band of the Steamship President Fillmore of the United States Lines, is no longer long distant horn tooter of the North Atlantic. Wearing the laurels of victory today is Carl Jacob, trombonist extraordinary in the band of the Steamship George Washington. He is not champion because of greater lung power, nor because of better lip control, but rather because of an unexpected calamity that put the former champion hors de combat. But being a good sport, as well as an excellent trombonist, the new champion declares he will shortly give his dethroned adversary another try for the title.

Brown came into the trombone tooting title after a series of elimination contests and won his crown after a decisive victory in Bremerhaven, Germany, when the top-notch performer of another steamship line went down before his glorious blasts. Then came the challenge from Jacob of the Steamship George Washington.

The battle was staged on the deck of the Steamship President Fillmore. According to the rules of the contest the men were to play continuously for two hours and if neither gave up tooting before that time the championship was to be decided on points. W. T. Robertson, port steward of the United States Lines, was chosen as umpire. Each player decided as to his musical selections, the agreement being that neither would repeat the same piece during the two hours of the contest.

At a signal from the Umpire the contest was on and the terrific rumpus that followed caused many of the spectators to hold their ears. At the end of the first hour the result seemed about even and then both of the trombonists redoubled their efforts.

About ten minutes of playing was left when an awful thing happened.

The champ happened to look under a life-boat and was greeted by a sight that caused cold perspiration to break out upon him. Under the boat was a grinning steward lustily sucking upon lemon. Try as he might to avoid the sight Brown's eyes could not resist the lemon-sucker.

Sour notes began to issue from the trombone of Brown. His mouth began to pucker and his eyes seemed to pop from his head.

Instead of music there came forth from his instrument a weird, prolonged moan as though from a great beast in mortal agony. The moan diminished, drowned down and ceased. The champion could not blow a note. The contest was over and Jacob was declared winner. He had not seen the lemon-sucker and continued to play for the full two hours.

Sour notes began to issue from the trombone of Brown. His mouth began to pucker and his eyes seemed to pop from his head.

THE HERRIN INVESTIGATION

At last the special grand jury investigation of the Herrin, Ill., mine massacre is in action: It is promised by state authorities that it will be "a searching inquiry" and that "every phase of the miners' war will be sifted in an effort to clear the name of Williamson county." This is as it should be.There have been many indications of the need for a final check upon violence in connection with labor troubles, whether responsibility for the violence lies at the door of organized labor or elsewhere. In fact there is need for a thorough airing of the whole situation in all parts of the country to determine insofar as possible where responsibility for this sort of thing does lie, whether it be violence in the mass, as at Herrin, or in the individual instance, as seems to occur time after time in smaller labor disputes all over the country.It is hard to see why lawlessness has been allowed to run unchecked until it could assume such grave proportions. The president has warned of the necessity for an awakening throughout the nation. The nation should heed it.At the same time it is essential in the Herrin affair and in the whole subject to proceed without prejudice.
The graver the offense, the greater the need that no partisan feeling shall be allowed to color the situation.
The law is for the protection of all; all must be held to obeying it.
All must be equally sure of obtaining justice when the law is invoked.

MOVING FROM JOB TO JOB

Thirty-four men who were associated together in business for fifty years assembled at the lake front residence of the company's president near Chicago, a few days ago. The emblem of the half-century service is a diamond pin which this year was conferred on the chief executive himself.Thirty-four is a small percentage of the total number of employees, and not a large percent of the total number of officers, which the institution has had in ten decades. For in trade is the usual thing for men to come and go, some to better opportunities, some into mistakes, some into change. The lapse of but a few years marks almost complete upheavals of an organization, with new faces and altered methods, often with new policy.After men become versed in a business or profession, and are addicted to it through formation of occupation habit, they are unfitted for anything else. If they invade another field of experience, the soon are surprised at the compulsion to unlearn prediposition to certain mental custom which they acquired unconsciously by previous application to work.
They have set ways, and the truth is forced on them that they can not easily adapt themselves to entirely different endeavor.But it is uncommon for men to shift from one company to another, even from one city to another always remaining in the same or a like business, profession or trade. Men keep moving from station to station until they are located congenially, and a certain number make changes simply because they are unstable or dissatisfied.There must be some inducement for men to linger in one environment for half a century. The average person, after attaining to prime, likes to be entrusted with latitude and responsibility, and, if he has the liberty, fifty years are as short as fifteen.No rule is suited to every individual. There are those for whom it is more prudent to make a few cautious changes than to stay attachedto one company. The unwise measure is to make too many changes.
Once a man ascertains where he belongs he knows where he can be most successful.

ONE OF THE GREATEST FIGURES

Arthur Griffith, president of the Irish free state, was a truly great man. He was the spirit of the Irish revolution and the Irish settlement which gave the Irish people autonomy and ended the seven-century war with England. He was the spirit of the Irish government which aimed at prosperity and happiness for the Irish people, amity and cooperation with England, and the permanence of republicanism through direct alliance with the British commonwealth of nations.Griffith propagated and vitalized the desire for Irish independence. As an editor he created and directed public sentiment. He designed the organization plan, and then led the organization. He seemed to be an idealist; yet, he was one of the committee which signed the peace and independent treaty with Great Britain. And then he headed the Irish free state.Griffith was not a warrior or conqueror.
But he was one of the great figures of modern history. He was an intense and determined nationalist, but he was intelligent, rather than emotional. When his country got what it wanted, he accepted the situation and made the best of it.
Griffith was great in the highest qualities of greatness.

DISINHERITED OUTCASTS

A prominent democratic newspaper says that "Liberty bonds, our national prodigals, have come back home to par." The description is hardly accurate. A prodigal is one who voluntarily leaves home. Liberty bonds did not leave par of their own volition—they were driven away by their paternal ancestor, the democratic administration in raising interest rates on loans secured by bonds and urging the banks to force owners to take up the bonds, that forced the bonds from par. Every action of the democratic administration, after issuing the bonds, tended to depreciate them in market value. They were not prodigals—they were disin-herited outcasts. The republican administration invited them back home —and they came back to par, and then some.

PAINTLESS PANTINGS

A law to put pants on rural Fil-ippines was defeated in the insular legislature at Manila. Congressman Nick Longworth once wrote a parody which he used in debate on the wool schedule. The last couplet read:"We can live without cousins, or aunts,
But civilized man can not live without pants."That being conceded, the Filipinos are neither civilized, nor will they permit themselves to be made so by sumptuary laws. They stand irrevocably and gosh-dashedly for shirt-tail self-determination and the freedom of the breeze.UNIFORM DIVORCE LAWS PRO-POSEDBy adoption of a report of a special committee, of which Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch of Chicago is chairman, the League of Women Voters, having 7,000,000 members, will begin a nation wide campaign for uniform marriage and divorce laws. The effect of the propaganda, which the women propose to wage with vigor, will be to create a more serious regard for the marriage bond and practically disownance divorces.Originating with one of the most potential organizations of women, the movement will have overwhelming moral and sentimental force. It is the greatest campaign that the women have started since they have taken active interest in public affairs.
Society is founded on the home, and divorce is generally recognized, through its pernicious influence on the family relationship, as the most dangerous enemy to the home.Mrs. McCulloch aptly says that "what we need in the United States is a more serious view of marriage.
With this state having one law, and that state another, we permit what amounts to polygamy and polyandry.

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well.

WHOOPING COUGH RISK

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP

Most people think whooping cough is a mild disease which all children must have.Ask any physician whether it's a mild disease. He'll tell you that its consequences are serious and far-reaching in many cases. He will warn you to keep children who have not had the disease from exposure to it.Whooping cough is very contagious and the infection is most virulent in the earlier stages of the disease before the characteristic whoop becomes noticeable.As is well known, whooping cough begins with the symptoms of an ordinary severe cold—sneezing, cough-ing and watering of the eyes. It is then that it is most contagious. True, it generally is impossible to know it from an ordinary cold, but in any case it is undesirable to be exposed to it, for colds are contagious, too.Not only the actual deaths from whooping cough are to be feared.
Those who survive the disease itself often suffer serious after-effects. The paroxysms of coughing strain the heart, which may be permanently damaged.
There is also the danger of other infections becoming superimposed upon the whooping cough infection—tuberculosis, for instance, or pneumonia.great acreages of timber reduced to charred stumps and ashes, it is plain that counsel and practice somewhere have failed to connect.There is no need to recite again the list of precautions for fire prevention, even that of screening the stacks of locomotives passing through timber country. The whole subject has been canvassed so many times. What is needed is a stronger incentive to prevention in the individual, and it seems as if the havoc wrought by the fires themselves ought to furnish that.

VACATION

Mrs. Kate Conley for 21 years has been scrubbing floors in the Massachusetts State House.During that time, she never had a vacation. Now she gets one, for two weeks, and says she will spend it in scrubbing and cooking in her own home, with one day's outing "at the beach."As you get this interesting glimpse into one human life, you compare your lot with Kate Conley's. The door closes.

COAL

Seventy-six dollars a ton is paid for coal by the world's farthest north hospital, at Point Barrow, Alaska.Yet this coal is mined only 100 miles away.It is hauled to the hospital on dog sledges.Go where you will, cheap transportation bobs up as one of the greatest problems. The system of distribution is in its infancy.

HORSESHOES

Horseshoe pitching now has 1,000 players, says B. G. Leighton, head of this sport's national association.This and the increasing popularity of golf indicate a gradual drift away from the game.And back of that is a national psychological wave, a general desire to get actual exercise out of sport instead of sitting comfortably in a grandstand and watching others exercise. It is an important and valuable change.

ALAS!

Germany also has a straw vote on prohibition—its first. This is in the town of Bielefeld.The vote is 30 to 1 against liquor.
No editorial comment on this could be as powerful as the bare facts.So much has been written about the prevention of forest fires that additional comment seems superfluous; but when the waning summer season brings same reports of blazing forests in the west and north, of towns destroyed, of lives wiped out andreal semblance, a mock appearance, a sham.It comes from—Latin "simulare," to simulate, feign or pretend.It's used like this—"Many people consider America's two major political parties both so lacking in any real policy today that they feel a contest between them at the polls is a mere simulacrum of an election of a generation ago."ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Peacock Burton

BEES, GIANT AND AN ELEPHANT FAIL TO SCARE TWINS.

And what did he do but change into a pink elephant and charge at them.

The next place the Twins came to was the Tinky-Winkle Star. There was a giant's house."Boo!" yelled the giant out of the window."Boo yourself!" answered Nick.
"We're not afraid of you. We're not afraid of anything.""I'll bet you are," answered the giant. "Just you wait."Pretty soon he reappeared in the doorway. And what did he do but change into a pink elephant and rush at them?But Nancy and Nick waited and waited.
Then, peeping out, they saw the bees had gone, so out they crawled.A purple fairy, flying by his ears, was just disappearing around the corner."My goodness!" said Nick. "The giant and the elephant and the bees must have been Flap-Doodle himself.
He's changed himself with the Fairy Queen's wand."

SHE MUST KNOW

By Berton Braiey

(Mary Ann Sanders of Beauvoir, Miss., aged 72, has just married for the seventh time.—N. E. A. story.)MARY ANN SANDERS of Beauvoir, Miss., has seven times sought matrimonial bliss, and six times in seven—you'll hear her expound it—Mary Ann Sanders has luckily found it!

Four times she has married Confederate Veterans.

As husbands, says Mary, there aren't any better 'uns;
And with the experience Mary can show, Mary Ann Sanders should certainly know!MARY ANN SANDERS is seventy-two,
But years do not matter—or that is her view;

"My heart's just as young and my mind's just as keen;

As when I first married at blushing fifteen.

And so I got married again, be it known,

Because girl cannot be happy alone.

"I could not stop Mark drinking," Cayley's letter went on, "but I kept him within certain bounds. Yes, I kept him outwardly decent; and perhaps now I was becoming like the cannibal who keeps his victim in good condition for his own ends. I used to gloat over Mark, thinking how utterly he was mine to ruin as I pleased, financially, morally, whatever way would give me most satisfaction. I had but to take my hand away from him and he mark. But again I was in no hurry. Then he killed himself. That futile little drunkard, eaten up with his own selfishness and vanity, offered his bestlessness to the truest and purest woman on this earth. You have seen her, Mr. Gillingham, but you never knew Mark Abbott. Even if he had not been a drunkard, there was no chance for her of happiness with him.

"I had known him for many years, but never once had I seen him moved by any generous emotion. To have lived with that shriveled little soul would have been hell for her; and a thousand times worse hell when he began to drink.

"So he had to be killed. I was the only one left to protect her, for her mother was in league with Mark to bring about her ruin. I would have shot him openly for her sake, and with what gladness, but I had no mind to sacrifice myself needlessly. He was in my power, I could persuade him to almost anything by flattery; surely it would not be difficult to give his death the appearance of an accident.

"I need not take up your time by telling you of the many plans I made and rejected. For some days I inclined toward an unfortunate boating accident in the pond—Mark, a very indifferent swimmer, myself almost exhausted in a gallant attempt to hold him up.

And then he himself gave me the idea, he and Miss Norris between them, and so put himself in my hands; without risk of discovery, I should have said, had you not discovered me.

"We were talking about ghosts. Mark had been even more vain, pompous and absurd than usual, and I could see that Miss Norris was irritated by it. After dinner she suggested dressing up as a ghost and frightening him. I thought it my duty to warn her that Mark took any joke against himself badly, but she was determined to do it. I gave way reluctantly. Reluctantly, also, I told her the secret of the passage.

"There is an underground passage from the library to the bowling-green. You should exercise your ingenuity, Mr. Gillingham, in trying to discover it. Mark came upon it by accident a year ago. It was a godsend to him; he could drink there in greater secrecy. But he had to tell me about it. He wanted an audience, even for his vice."

"I told Miss Norris then, because it was necessary for my plan that Mark should be thoroughly frightened. Without the passage she could never have got close enough to the bowling-green to alarm him properly, but as I arranged it with her she made the most effective appearance, and Mark was in just the state of rage and vindictiveness which I required. Miss Norris, you understand, is a professional actress. I need not say that to her I appeared to be animated by no other feeling than a boyish desire to bring off a good joke—a joke directed as much against the others as against Mark.

"He came to me that night, as I expected, still quivering with indignation. Miss Norris must never be asked to the house again; I was to make a special note of it; never again. It was outrageous. Had he not a reputation as a host to keep up, he would pack her off next morning.

Dixon Pastor Goes Back to Home of His Boyhood for a Visit

Under the caption "Return of an Eau Claire Boy," a recent issue of the Eau Claire, Wis., Leader had the following concerning a visit in that city by Rev. H. C. Leland of this city, who plans to soon return to Dixon and supply pulpits:

During the past few weeks, Rev. Hector C. Leland of Dixon, Ill., has been visiting relatives and friends in Eau Claire and vicinity—viewing the haunts of his boyhood days, and recalling the events of "auld lang syne." Mr. Leland came to Eau Claire with his parents when the East Side held only a few buildings and the west side of the river, was an unbroken wilderness. So for a time he grew up with the country. He received the rudiments of his education in the rural schools and the Eau Claire Methodist seminary, and his college course in Chicago university. Mr. Leland was much impressed by the progress which Eau Claire had made in the last few years and by the prosperity of the surrounding country. His stay in Eau Claire was a continuous ovation with receptions and picnics galore. At one picnic especially, about 44 relatives met at the old Leland homestead in the Town of Union. On Sunday evening, Aug. 13, he preached to a most appreciative audience in the First Baptist church of which his mother, and where the entire Leland family attended church for many years. Eau Claire is always glad to welcome her boys of earlier days.

There is a reason why you should let the City Steam Laundry do your family wash these hot summer days. There are many reasons, but the principal one is a real rest for the housewife. City Steam Laundry, Humphrey & Teeter, 319 First St. Phone 98.

"All the same, I went on, 'even without your beard and mustache you might be recognizable. Unless, of course,' I broke off.

"Unless what?"
"You pretend to be Robert. I began to laugh to myself again. 'By Jove!' I said, 'that's not a bad idea. Pretend to be Robert, the wastrel brother, and make yourself objectionable to Miss Norris. Borrow money from her, and that sort of thing.'

"Robert," he said. "Yes. How shall we work it?"

"There was really a Robert, Mr. Gillingham, as I have no doubt you and the Inspector both discovered. And he must be disapproved of.

And of course she would never come again—that was obvious. And then suddenly I began to laugh. He looked up at me indignantly.

"Is there a joke?" he said coldly.

I laughed gently again.

"I was just thinking," I said, "that it would be rather amusing if you well, had your revenge."

"My revenge? How do you mean?"

"Well, paid her back in her own coin."

"Do you mean try and frighten her?"

"No, no; but dressed up and pulled her leg a bit. Made her look a fool in front of the others."

"For the next two days Mark and I worked out our plans. You understand by now that our aims were not identical. Mark's endeavor was that his deception should last for, say, a couple of hours; mine that it should go to the grave with him. He had only to deceive Miss Norris and the other guests; I had to deceive the world.

"When he was dressed up as Robert, I was going to kill him. Robert would then be dead, Mark (of course) missing. What could anybody think but that Mark had killed Robert? But you see how important it was for Mark to enter fully into his latest (and last) impersonation. Half-measures would be fatal.

"You will say that it was impossible to do the thing thoroughly enough. I answer again that you never knew Mark. He was being what he wished most to be—an artist. No Othello ever blocked himself all over with such enthusiasm as did Mark. His beard was going anyhow—possibly a chance remark of Miss Norbury's helped here. She did not like beards. But it was important for me that the dead man's hands should not be the hands of a cultured gentleman. Five minutes playing upon the vanity of the artist settled his hands. He let the nails grow and then cut them raggedly. Miss Norris would notice your hands at once," I had said. "Besides, as an artist—"

"So with his underclothes. It was hardly necessary to warn him that his pants might show above the edge of his socks; as an artist he seemed to himself most wonderful. Certainly he had some ability for the stage, so long as he had the stage to himself and was playing to an admiring audience. As a professional actor in a small part he would have been hopeless; as an amateur playing the leading part, he deserved all that the local papers had ever said about him.

"And so the idea of giving us a private performance, directed against a professional actress who had made fun of him, appealed equally to his vanity and his desire for retaliation. If he, Mark Abbott, by his wonderful acting could make Ruth Norris look a fool in front of the others, could take her in, and then join in the laugh at her afterward, he would indeed have had a worthy revenge!"

"How Cay, how?" he said eagerly.

"Well, I haven't really thought it out," I protested. "It was just an idea."

"He began to think it out for himself."

"I might pretend to be a manager, come down to see her—but I suppose she knows them all. What about an interviewer?"

"It's going to be difficult," I said thoughtfully. "You've got rather a characteristic face, you know. And your beard!"

"I'd shave it off," he snapped.

"My dear Mark!"

"He looked away, and mumbled,

"I've been thinking of taking it off, anyhow. And besides, if I'm going to do the thing, I'm going to do it properly."

"Yes, you always were an artist," I said, looking at him admiringly.

"He hurried. To be called an artist was what he longed for most. Now I knew that I had him.

Big Auto Tire Shop in Clinton Burned

Clinton, Ia., Aug. 24.—(By the Associated Press)—Adjutant General Carlos E. Black is in a quandary. Troops numbering 535 officers and men are on duty in Joliet, Bloomington and Clinton, requiring more than $1,000 a day for their keep, for which there is no specific appropriation.

Without satisfactory assurance that conditions warrant the withdrawal of troops from these places of recent strike violence, and facing violation of a statute and commission of a felony if he spends money for their keep in excess of an appropriation, the general has ordered, he announced today, that the troops shall have their money out of the "fund for operation."

This fund was appropriated for office and arsenal expense and salaries. "How much have you to spend?" the general was asked.

"I don't know," the general answered, "with a grin. "I'm afraid to look. I'm in a queer fix. It seems I may soon be actually faced with the alternative of withdrawing the troops or committing a felony."

This condition of affairs the general said, was due to the fact that the appropriation for emergency use of the national guard, was declared unconstitutional.

HOT WEATHER HINTICED COFFEE

Iced coffee is not only a delicious summer drink, but it also furnishes a mild stimulation that is particularly grateful on a sultry hot day. It may be combined with fruit juices and other ingredients in a variety of cooling beverages, generally popular with men.

Coffee that is to be served cold should be made somewhat stronger than usual. To get the best results get a package of Thomas J. Webb Coffee from your dealer. Brew it according to your favorite method and chill before adding sugar and cream. If cracked ice is added make sure the coffee is strong enough to provide for the dilution caused by the ice. Mixing the ingredients in a shaker produces a smoother beverage topped with an appetizing foam.

BASE HITS

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Twenty hits off three Red Sox pitchers enabled the St. Louis Americans to defeat the Bostonians, 13-2, and to keep pace with the New York club, which found its batting eye after two days, and took the final of its Cleveland series 7-3. Today the Browns, with only half a game lead and the Yankees will meet in a series at the Polo grounds that may decide the league race.

Walter Johnson, Washington's veteran, added another shutout to his long record, holding the White Sox to 5 scattered hits and winning 1-0. His mound opponent, Blankenship, though allowing only four hits, was hit for two in the second frame which coupled with a stolen base by Shanks and a wild pitch accounted for the only score.

Detroit and Philadelphia engaged in an extra inning hitting contest, Detroit winning 11-8. Hellman, Walker, Blue and Hauser hit homers. Walker's was his thirty-first of the season. Blue added three runs to his long season's string.

In the National League, New York gained another notch on the Cardinals, 2-1 with the aid of Jess Barnes' pitching, while the St. Louisans were losing a wild scoring game to the Braves 12-11.

The Pirates continued on their winning way, trouncing the Phillies 10-4. Alexander held Brooklyn to four hits and the Cubs won their first game in the week, 4-1.

After being held to five hits in two days, the Yankees came out of their batting slump and thumped the Indians, making a dozen hits, including a double and triple.

Joe Dugan, former Red Sox now with the Yankees, led the attack for his club by piling four singles and drawing a man on balls in five trips to the plate.

Babe Ruth failed to get a hit during the batting bee of the Yanks but managed to come through with a sacrifice.

Jones of the Yanks pitched his best game in weeks when he held Cleveland to seven hits, one a homer by Wood with a man on base.

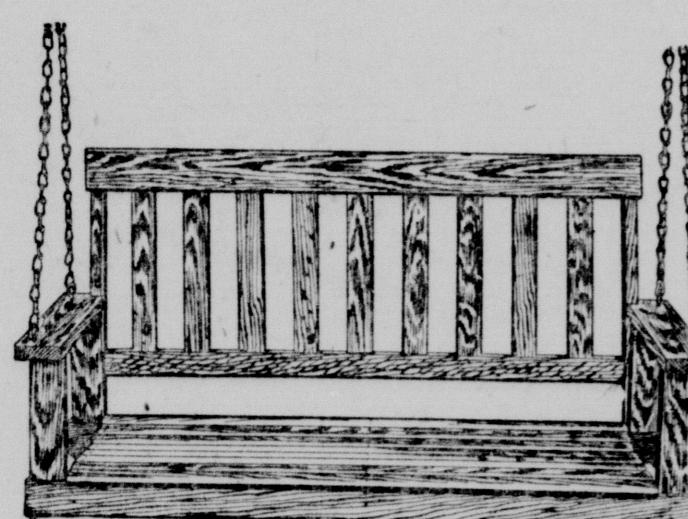

Tris Speaker and Joe Wood collided after Shang's fly and the Indians' manager was painfully spattered off the field by two of his fellow players.

Three Boston pitchers failed to stop the slugging of the Browns who gathered 20 hits, and won their third straight from the Red Sox, keeping the lead in the American League pennant race.

Walter Johnson, the speed ball veteran and Ted Blankenship, the youthful cowboy, engaged in a pitching duel, and the veteran triumphed when the cowboy helped defeat himself with a wild pitch. After two men were out Ted held the ball while Shanks stole second, and then the wild pitch put Shanks on third, scoring a minute later on a single, with the only run of the game, the Seniors blanking the White Sox.

The "crucial" series for first place in the junior major league is scheduled to start today with the Browns.

THE CHANGING MOON.

The moon was one big custard pie
And for it did star children sigh.
They ate it almost all—not quite,
For—later, I did view a sight; They thought it good, all eggs and spice,
And left but one wee, tiny slice.

The Neglected Errand

If there's one thing, Dad I dislike, it's doing errands," cried Johnnie Green. "It seems to me there's scarcely a day lately, that you don't want me to stop at one of the stores on my way home from school and buy something."

"My son," said Mr. Green, "please stop banging your school satchel against the kitchen table. You can't imagine how selfish you seem to me."

To be unwilling to stop at a store and bring something home which is very much needed. You know how busy I am, now that Spring has come, and to stop my work out in the fields and drive to town when you are right there would be indeed quite unnecessary."

"But Dad, now you're asking me to go to the drug store, and 'hang around' there while that poky, old prescription clerk puts up Auntie's cough medicine.
Say, why couldn't Mother hitch up the pony and drive into town? It would do her good. I know she'd have a good time, and she could get the medicine.
I always like to walk home with Jack Brown, and I'm almost sure he won't wait for me. His mother doesn't allow him to loiter in town and so I'll have to walk the whole mile home myself and it will be dreadfully lonesome."

An Electric Light Carnival

"Johnnie," said Mr. Green, "I know perfectly well you wouldn't be more than five minutes getting the medicine and that young man at the drug store is no 'poke; so if Jack Brown doesn't

ID you ever watch the insects play at an electric light carni-

Moths, June bugs and night insects of all kinds have a nighty Mardi-Gras round and round the lights, some flying so swiftly they leave a tiny trail of brilliancy behind them, which gives a striking impression of hundreds of bright paper ribbons and confetti.

Combine this gay sight with the booming drumlike sound of the June bugs, the shrill jazzy pipe of the Katydid and the twang-twang of the cricket, and there 'before your eyes and ears a carnival goes merrily on.

Teach your ears to hear.
Train your eyes to see.
This world is full of wonders
For folks like you and me.

ISAAC ICEPICK.

think enough of you to spare a few minutes and go to the drug store with you, I don't think much of his friendship, and I know his parents well enough to feel sure they'd not call running quickly with you to do an errand, 'loitering around the town.' You and I won't talk any more about this errand. You must go and buy Auntie's cough medicine."

All day he considered himself very much abused and at times his mind wandered so over his fancied grievance, that he made several mistakes in his calculations in arithmetic.

At recess he said to Jack Brown, "My Dad told me this morning I must stop at the drug store and have the clerk fill a bottle I brought to school, with cough medicine for Auntie. You'll go with me, won't you, old boy?"

Jack looked quite serious for a moment and then he said: "Johnnie, I have a new pair of rabbits at home and I haven't seen them yet, as they only arrived this morning just as I was starting for school. I'm awfully sorry to tell you I won't go with you, but you surely won't expect me to go with you when I'm in such a hurry to reach home and see my pretty new bunnies."

Johnnie hadn't forgotten and he had really intended going for the medicine, but now a naughty idea took posse-sion of him and it was this:

"I absolutely must go with Jack, and I'll wrap up Auntie's medicine bottle very neatly and set it on the mantlepiece in the sitting room and just as likely as not, she'll not be needing it.
I heard her tell Mother this morning her cough was much better. If Dad says 'where's the medicine, son?' I'll wave my hand toward the mantlepiece."

At supper time he noticed his father glancing at the bottle on the mantle.

That night his auntie's cough was very troublesome, so Mrs. Green took the bottle up to her and found it empty. And Mr. Green, tired as he was, hitched up the pony and took the drive in the dark for the medicine to relieve the poor old lady's distress. Not a word was said to Johnnie, but he knew how they all felt.

"Dad," he said, "I did very wrong, but I'll never growl at any errands I always have such jolly good times running home from school together," the—promptly."

Peggie, who had made the peevish

By the time school was dismissed Jack Brown had entirely forgotten that Johnnie had told him he must go to the drug store, so as they left the school room, he called: "Come along, Johnnie Green; hurry up now. You can come with me and see my new bunnies."

Johnnie hadn't forgotten and he had
really intended going for the medicine, but now a naughty idea took possesfolk, not having the habit, didn't like them and after a day of this way of

A whirlwind story of a small town youth, gawky and bashful, who has been known as "Sweetie" all his life, but on his twenty-first birthday he breaks out and becomes a regular fellow.

The picture has more thrills than the ordinary melodrama and more genuine comedy than a dozen combined comedies. It is said to be the best multiple reel comedy since "Twenty-three and One-Half Hours' Leave" and in addition has all the pathos of "The Kid."
